

PE Invites Contractors To Display

Electrical contractors, building contractors, architects and their employes have been invited to the second annual "Watts New" residential wiring equipment display Monday, November 16, at the Potomac Edison Company's general offices, 55 East Washington Street.

Sponsored by manufacturers and local distributor representatives of electric wiring equipment and the local power company, this exhibit will feature the latest electrical wiring equipment. It will be on display from 4 to 9 p.m.

Included will be a demonstration of aluminum cable and connectors, raceway demonstrations, new ideas in wall switches using decorator ideas, a display of the latest wiring tools, and other equipment demonstrations and displays.

Also included will be information on changes in the national wiring code which affect contracting and building operations. Representatives of wiring equipment manufacturers and distributors will be on hand throughout the evening to demonstrate equipment and answer questions of visitors.

Through these presentations, contractors, builders and architects will be presented with new materials and methods that could help reduce labor and material costs while providing better service to customers.

Light refreshments will be served. The sponsors reminded that dress will be informal.

Big Brother History Told

Robert W. McColley, state parole officer and executive director of Big Brothers, Inc., spoke on the Big Brother movement at Tuesday's meeting of the Hagerstown Civitan Club in the Legion Home.

President William E. Greene, president John H. Bowie, general chairman of the district council meeting committee, reported on the coming meeting. Mel Greenwald reported on fruit cake sale, and Robert H. Shingleton, program chairman, introduced the speaker.

Mr. McColley pointed out that several years ago the Grand Jury Association discussed juvenile delinquency and proposed a Big Brother Association here. The group, he explained, consists of responsible men who interest themselves in the welfare of boys whose physical, mental and moral development has been endangered because of inadequate parental supervision, bad environment or other conditions.

The Big Brothers history, he said, is the repeated use of the one man-one boy formula, which means applying the influence of one man's character and personality to one boy's growth.

He pointed out that the Big Brother idea dates back 33 years to the time when Ernest K. Coulter, clerk of the children's court in New York, proposed the plan. Nationally, the organization now has an active roster of 10,000 Big Brothers.

Civilians were reminded that it costs from $2,000 to $3,000 yearly to keep a boy in a reformatory. If we can save boys from being sent away to institutions, we render a good and lasting service to the boy and also save money for taxpayers, he said.

Statistically, the speaker said, 40 per cent of crimes are committed by juveniles under 16.

On the local Big Brothers organization, Mr. McColley said that 23 men are participating, eight of whom are active in the work and others awaiting boys that are carefully selected by Evan Crossley, former juvenile court magistrate. Knowing all the Big Brothers personally, Mr. Crossley can match Big Brothers with Little Brothers from the best advantage from a psychological viewpoint.

Morris Bassford, president of Big Brothers in Hagerstown, was also introduced.

Schools Also Serve Adult Citizens In Community

This is another in a series of articles prepared for National Education Week by the County Teachers Association and Board of Education.

What's going on in school tonight? Those lighted windows probably mean adult education at work.

There was a day when one could finish school, take a job, and forget about "education" forever. No longer is that true. Today people must keep on learning. They must learn in order to keep up with the young people entering industry from college. They must learn how to cope with the new scientific developments that are making their jobs and their lives more complicated. They must learn in order to get along with people. What is being done in adult education?

People are learning new skills to keep up with the technological advances in their own fields or to take the places of those no longer in demand. Many people who dropped out before graduation are coming back to finish their high school education.

Others are learning to be better citizens through lectures, forums, and other adult programs. Heads of families or future families are coming back to study health and safety in the home, management of household finances, or the problems of planning for and rearing a family.

Still others are studying philosophy, psychology, literature, fine arts, foreign languages, or other subjects to broaden their areas of interest.

The adult program in this county is attempting to find out the needs and desires of the adult citizens and is setting up classes in which there is sufficient interest to warrant a program. Groups should make known what they want and need.

Telephone Cable Damaged Off Nova Scotia
NEW YORK (AP)—The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. said Wednesday one of its main transatlantic telephone cables has been damaged off Nova Scotia—just how, it does not yet know.

Earlier the Navy reported in Washington that the Canadian government had asked for two patrol planes to scout the cable break area. The planes encountered poor visibility and turned back.

The damage point or break is the same area where five breaks occurred last February. At that time an American naval party boarded a Russian fishing trawler to check on whether it had caused the breaks.
